Dry and bright for the London Marathon

19 April 2013 - Met Office forecasters are predicting a chilly start but a mainly dry day on Sunday for the Marathon.

There should be plenty of sunshine through the morning and temperatures are expected to rise to around 14 or 15 Celsius by mid-afternoon. It will become increasingly cloudy through the afternoon though and occasional rain is possible over London by late afternoon or early evening. Winds will be light and south-westerly throughout the day.

The latest forecast, information about the course and past weather can be found online via the Met Office Events pages. As always, you can stay up-to-date with the latest weather for the rest of the UK online, through our mobile apps, Facebook , Twitter and through TV and radio broadcasts.

Contact information

Met Office Press Office: +44 (0)1392 886655

E-mail: Press Office

Met Office Customer Centre: 01392 885680

If you're outside the UK: +44 1392 885680

Last updated: 19 April 2013